Contraceptive Implants Skills Building Workshop

SPONSORING ORGANIZATION(S)
Jhpiego; EngenderHealth

EVENT DESCRIPTION
This workshop aims to provide technical and programmatic updates surrounding contraceptive implants. This workshop will review new global guidance from the World Health Organization on provision of implants during the immediate postpartum period; provide opportunities for simulation practice for clinical skills in implant insertion, removal, and client centered counseling. The agenda will also encourage discussion on programmatic best practices in new method introduction and scaling up of delivering quality implant services as part of comprehensive family planning programs. This workshop is intended for clinicians who are actively providing family planning services including those who are already providing long acting reversible contraception (LARC). Registration is required for the 50 eligible participants in this workshop.

Knowledge, Action, Results: How to Translate Global Family Planning Tools to the Local Level

SPONSORING ORGANIZATION(S)
Knowledge for Health (K4Health) Project

EVENT DESCRIPTION
Have you ever struggled to transfer lessons learned into practice, or had to make program decisions with insufficient information — or even too much information? If so, this is the event for you! Come share and learn from others’ experiences applying global family planning tools to implement country-level programs.

The Knowledge for Health (K4Health) Project, funded by the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID), designed this event to create an enabling environment for family planning implementers to share their knowledge and learn from each other in a facilitated open knowledge exchange forum. Knowledge management (KM) is an approach that supports expanded knowledge exchange and learning, contributing to improved systems, programs, practices, and health outcomes. It provides a means for rapidly sharing the latest research and exchanging “how to” knowledge that is critical for meeting country-level family planning goals. Through a series of “firecracker” presentations, participants will learn about basic KM principles and how KM can be useful in their work. Then, the team will divide into groups for “deep dives” into current tools and materials—including the Costed Implementation Plan (CIP) Resource Kit and more—to help meet their program goals and improve their performance. Experts will provide hands-on support and guidance, and will also lead discussions around implementation of resources. This event will empower participants to use knowledge management tools and materials to better meet the goals of their programs.

This event will feature knowledge management experts from the Johns Hopkins Center for Communication Programs, IntraHealth, Management Sciences for Health, FHI 360, and USAID, among others.

Implementation Science Approaches to FP and RH: Experiential learning and sharing for implementers, policy makers, advocates and researchers
SPONSORING ORGANIZATION(S)
Population Council; TRAction Project; URC; FHI 360; Innovations for Poverty Action
EVENT DESCRIPTION
This interactive half-day session will provide participants with practical examples of how implementation science (IS) can inform programming and policies related to family planning and reproductive health. Presentations from organizations actively engaged and experienced in implementation science (Evidence Project, Population Council; FHI360; Translating Research into Action Project (TRACTION), URC; and Innovations for Poverty Action (IPA), will provide session participants with in-depth description of lessons learned and the challenges associated with implementation science approaches for informing FP/RH programs and policies.

Presentations, case studies, and group discussions will address the following questions: what are the benefits and challenges/limitations of an IS approach to FP/RH programming?; what is the relationship between evidence and advocacy?; how can evidence be best utilized to inform the scale-up of programming and best practices?; why is replication important in scaling up programs?; and where should the field of IS move in the future?

This session will be of interest to implementers of family planning and RH programs, policy-makers and decision makers interested in research utilization, advocates interested in applying evidence, and researchers interested in implementation science.

Spotlight on Myanmar: Expanding Reproductive Health Access to Young People
SPONSORING ORGANIZATION(S)
Pathfinder International; The David and Lucile Packard Foundation; Ministry of Health, Myanmar
EVENT DESCRIPTION
This invitation-only side event would be of interest to organizations and individuals working to expand sexual and reproductive health access in Myanmar. Myanmar’s new Five-Year Strategic Plan for Young People’s Health (2016-2020) was launched in October 2015 by the Ministry of Health. It is an opportune time for stakeholders to discuss their contributions to the Strategic Plan, discuss ideas for building on existing resources and tools, and how to stimulate operationalization of this Plan at the township levels for implementation of concrete actions. The speakers at this event will include H.E. Dr. Thein Thein Htay, Deputy Minister of Health; Ms. Tamara Kreinin, the Director of the Population and Reproductive Health Program at the David and Lucile Packard Foundation, Dr. Venkatraman Chandra-Mouli, adolescent health expert in the Department of Reproductive Health and Research at WHO Geneva; and Sono Aibe, focal point for the ongoing Myanmar projects at Pathfinder International. Due to limited space, please contact Sono Aibe at saibe@pathfinder.org for more information about this event.

EVENT DESCRIPTION
From June 8–11, 2015 in Chiang Mai, Thailand, the Accelerating Access to Postpartum Family Planning in Sub-Saharan Africa and Asia Global Meeting brought together delegations from 16 countries and key international stakeholders to accelerate access to postpartum family planning (PPFP). This meeting was part of a multilateral effort aims to fast-track country progress towards the goals of Family Planning 2020 (FP2020) by reaching postpartum women, whose family planning needs are frequently overlooked. This workshop is a follow-up event from this PPFP Global Meeting to encourage continued engagement with country delegations. This workshop aims to provide an opportunity to assess progress towards the action steps identified at the PPFP Global Meeting. Country-level experience in planning, implementing, and scaling up PPFP programs will be highlighted to contextualize and provide applicable insight into challenges and positive drivers in actualizing PPFP strategies at the national and sub-national levels. Policy makers and FP champions from Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Burkina Faso, DRC, Ethiopia, India, Indonesia, Kenya, Madagascar, Nigeria, Pakistan, the Philippines, Rwanda, Tanzania, Uganda, and Zambia are strongly encourage to participate to advocate for PPFP introduction and scale-up.

EVENT DESCRIPTION
The International Consortium for Emergency Contraception (ICEC) and the World Health Organization (WHO) will host a symposium on emergency contraception on MONDAY, JANUARY 25th (the day the conference opens). Come and share your program experiences and learn about emerging data, new tools, and strategies. Join advocates, researchers, programmatic experts, health care providers, pharmaceutical representatives, and other leaders to discuss strengthening access to EC, particularly the difficulties in mainstreaming EC and possible ways forward. Panels will cover topics ranging from EC access in Asia to community-based distribution of EC, as well as technical updates on emergency contraception. Panelists will also share several new global tools available to support your work on EC, including a training module and a demand generation toolkit. The symposium will start at 9am and end at 3pm, and will include lunch, coffee breaks, and plenty of time for discussion, questions, and exchange.

An evidence map of rigorous evidence on adolescent reproductive health: designing a framework

SPONSORING ORGANIZATION(S)
International Initiative for Impact Evaluation (3ie)

EVENT DESCRIPTION
The International Initiative for Impact Evaluation (3ie) invites organizations, researchers and other stakeholders in adolescent reproductive health (ARH) to participate in a half-day consultation workshop. Participants will have the chance to share programming initiatives and discuss prevailing theories of change around ARH. The final output will be a framework of ARH-related interventions and outcomes that will capture the scope of evidence around this topic.

This consultation will inform a comprehensive scoping study currently being conducted by 3ie, with support from the Hewlett Foundation. This scoping work will assess the rigorous evidence surrounding adolescent reproductive health in low- and middle-income countries. The key tool to analyse the supply of evidence is a 3ie-developed evidence gap map, which is a visual representation of how much impact evaluation and systematic review evidence exists for a given sector or policy issue. The framework is the backbone of the map and presents interventions and outcomes in a detailed matrix representing current practice and reflecting the prevailing theories of change.

A selection of participants in this consultation will be invited to attend a two-day roundtable session in Washington, DC in June 2016. At this event, preliminary results will be presented and some participants will be invited to present current evaluations and programming on ARH.

Envisioning the World We Want: Family Planning +Social Good

SPONSORING ORGANIZATION(S)
FHI 360; UN Foundation

EVENT DESCRIPTION
How can access to sexual and reproductive health change the world? What do we envision in the future for women and girls? How do we make that change a reality? These are the questions that we will be posing to experts and champions from around the world, including participants and our virtual audience via social media. +Social Good offers a creative platform to discuss the power of sexual and reproductive health and rights, including access to family planning. Our conversations will explore how technology and innovation are supporting girls and women’s health and rights.

Get passionate about the power of family planning to help build the world we want through the Sustainable Development Goals. Engage in a dialogue of how advocacy and non-traditional partnerships are transforming family planning. Be inspired by interactive ideations on the future of contraceptive technology.

Come pickup your registration packet at the Westin and stay for an engaging and interactive kick off to ICFP 2016.

Increasing met needs for family planning and contraceptives through a participatory approach involving community and health care provider

SPONSORING ORGANIZATION(S)
Department of Reproductive Health and Research, World Health Organization; International Centre for Reproductive Health, Kenya; Maternal, Adolescents and Child Health Research, South Africa; University Teaching Hospital, Zambia

EVENT DESCRIPTION
Unmet need for contraception remains high and is highest among the most vulnerable with over 200 million women and girls having an unmet need for modern contraception. The International Conference on Population and Development (ICPD) emphasized that the commitment to human rights (HR) in the delivery of sexual and reproductive health services should not be compromised to reach quantitative goals. Quality of Care (QoC), voluntary use of contraception, and informed choice must remain priorities. Participation is one of the key principles highlighted by WHO’s guideline on ensuring HR within contraceptive programmes. Furthermore, the active involvement of affected populations in the decision-making and implementation of policies, programmes and services is a precondition for sustainable development and the highest attainable standard of health. However, participation in achieving health improvements, QoC, contraceptive uptake and other desired programme outcomes remains ill-defined. The following topics are addressed during this panel:

1. Theory of Change in the development and evaluation of a health sector and community-based participatory approach in a human rights framework, to increase met needs for FP/C.
2. Community and healthcare providers’ understandings of the concept of QoC
3. Overcoming challenges in implementing community participation in Family Planning and Contraceptive programmes by involving both community and healthcare providers
4. Barriers and enablers to participation and FP/C uptake: the Kenya example

The panel will present the design and rational for a multi-country complex-designed intervention: The UPTAKE Project - Developing a participatory approach involving health sector and community members, to increase met needs for contraception.

Changing norms and reducing stigma: Implementing innovations to expand access to quality PAC services

SPONSORING ORGANIZATION(S)
PAC Consortium; EngenderHealth; Bixby Center for Population, Health, & Sustainability; Gynuity Health Projects; IntraHealth International; Ipas; Jhpiego; Pathfinder International; Population Council

EVENT DESCRIPTION
Postabortion care (PAC), as an innovative care concept itself, has created opportunities to provide services for women presenting with bleeding in early pregnancy, often due to complications of incomplete abortion, particularly in societies with restrictive abortion laws. In reality, PAC has achieved more in reducing the risk of mortality from unsafe abortion by promoting treatment of the complications of unsafe abortion, promoting postabortion family planning (FP), providing compassionate counseling and psychosocial support, and engaging with communities to raise awareness for support of PAC clients and reduce stigma.

Recent innovation in providing PAC is creating new opportunities for increasing access to safer and more effective services, particularly in resource-limited settings, where frontline providers are trained to manage incomplete abortion and offer counseling, FP services, and other care. Alternatives to surgical evacuation, including manual vacuum aspiration and misoprostol, are more accessible to women and to FP service providers, offering health care providers an opportunity to share tasks related to PAC services, making services safer, more accessible, and potentially more cost-effective, while also working to reduce stigma associated with abortion and PAC. It is time to make PAC a routine, integrated package of services at multiple levels of care, to reach those in greatest need and to reduce stigma.

The PAC Consortium meeting will explore the themes of expanding and scaling up services, ending stigmatization, decentralizing services, and institutionalizing quality PAC services, as well as the many opportunities to address the continuing problem of mortality and morbidity due to unsafe abortions.

Quality Upheld: Local Action for Global Progress

SPONSORING ORGANIZATION(S)
PAI
EVENT DESCRIPTION
The global conversation around international family planning needs to shift to a more holistic approach around how quality is a critical input for shaping meaningful access. Quality services are key to truly fulfilling reproductive and human rights. From mining big data to considering human centered design, from evaluating health systems to listening to women around the world, we must hone fresh perspective and intelligence about how quality truly can be achieved, and where it currently breaks down. Such a quantum leap forward will require galvanizing a global community to examine the evidence, identify and act on the most promising advocacy levers, and source scalable innovations from key geographies from around the world.

The Packard Foundation has recently made several investments to dramatically accelerate our shared understanding of quality and rights in the context of international family planning. These investments include PAI’s QUEST project (Quality Upheld: Every Service, Every Time), which will bring together a qualitative analysis of quality in family planning and reproductive health care in five geographies (Ethiopia, India, Pakistan, Myanmar, and Democratic Republic of Congo).

This event will launch the QUEST project and bring together key senior stakeholders from across sectors as emerging champions for a quality agenda. We hope to spark new conversation about achieving quality services for every person, every time while taking specific national contexts, as well as prevailing global trends, into account.

Portrait gallery and cocktails begin at 6:00 pm. Dinner & conversation begin at 7:00 pm.

The essentials of contracting to provide family planning and reproductive health services

SPONSORING ORGANIZATION(S)
Abt Associates Inc.

EVENT DESCRIPTION
Attending ICFP? Join the SHOPS project for a special event and learn how to evaluate, pursue, and implement contracts for family planning services using lessons from Marie Stopes Papua New Guinea.

As momentum builds to achieve universal health coverage, governments are increasingly engaging private providers to deliver priority health services. This trend presents new opportunities for private providers to expand their services and serve more clients. To do so, providers need to understand when they should enter into contractual relationships and how to operate under them. SHOPS presents a contracting lifecycle framework that can help private providers evaluate, pursue, and implement contracts for family planning services. Using experience from SHOPS and one of its partners, Marie Stopes Papua New Guinea, this interactive session will feature practical lessons from experts in the field.

MAKING THE CASE: increasing access to safe abortion care in humanitarian settings

SPONSORING ORGANIZATION(S)
Safe Abortion Care Sub-Working Group of the Inter-Agency Working Group on Reproductive Health in Crises (IAWG)

EVENT DESCRIPTION
This is the most important reproductive health issue that one no one is talking about. Let’s change that.
We are pleased to invite you to an event on the challenges and opportunities for safe abortion care provision in humanitarian settings.

During this event, we will debunk the myth that safe abortion cannot be provided in humanitarian settings and explore strategies to expand access in restrictive contexts as well as ways to extend this debate to the country and local levels. After a brief formal discussion period, participants will then be invited to frankly discuss the realities of safe abortion care provision over refreshments.

EVENT TITLE
Cocktail Reception: Reporting on Reproductive Health

SPONSORING ORGANIZATION(S)
Pulitzer Center

EVENT DESCRIPTION
Great opportunity sits at the intersection of journalism and reproductive health. How can professionals in these fields develop relationships with one another for the betterment of public health?

Whether or not you attended our earlier panel called “Reporting on Reproductive Health: Opportunities and Obstacles,” join us for a casual cocktail reception to continue discussion and connect with journalists who cover your issue area.

Registration required: https://pulitzer-reporting-on-reproductive-health.eventbrite.com
Limited spaces available.
